

The Texas side of Texarkana has been "dry" for many years except for legal beer in one city precinct — and that, too, was closed up in a local option election last Saturday. Texarkana Gazette this morning published the following comment:

"Persons who favor the legal sale of beer and argue that it is to be preferred to prohibition were asking yesterday what happened in Bowie county."

"The question is not too hard to answer. Although the drys conducted a spirited campaign which was backed with considerable political sagacity, the election was won on the physical evidence that those who favor the legal sale of beer had failed in the matter of adequate control of the outlets. They allowed a string of disreputable honky-tonks and taverns to spring up within Texarkana and along the highways which were repulsive to decent people and a strain on the consciences of those who know the difference between right and wrong."

"Many of those places should never have been granted beer licenses in the first place and certainly those licenses should have been revoked when it became evident that the proprietors did not intend to conduct them in a sane and sensible manner, according to dictates of decency and good taste. The people simply rebelled against such conditions."

And then Editor J. Q. Mahaffey gives this word of warning to the Arkansas side of the city:

"The election should be analyzed carefully by men in the beer and liquor business in Texarkana, Ark., and Miller county and they should take steps immediately to heed the lesson that it taught."

To a prohibitionist this makes good reading — Texarkana's troubles with law-enforcement. But not very many people in the United States really believe in prohibition — and practically none have any confidence in its ability to solve the liquor control problem.

Thirteen states have, however, developed a workable solution—the state-owned dispensary, or state monopoly, plan.

They are: Alabama, Idaho, Iowa, Michigan, New Hampshire, North Carolina, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Vermont, Virginia, Washington, and West Virginia. Three of them — Alabama, North Carolina, and Virginia — are rich and prosperous states of the South. They have a good record on state finance, on public schools and welfare aid, and law-and-order.

I first suggested the state dispensary system for Arkansas after repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment in the 30s, and it has been this newspaper's solution for the liquor problem ever since. The privately-owned package stores are better than the old saloon — but the state dispensary system is our obvious goal.

For one reason, the competitive, private-profit system is abolished, in a business that has a hard time regulating itself.

For another reason, the state dispensary automatically produces revenues with which the traffic can be policed and regulations enforced.

And there is a third reason — a state dispensary system will produce more than double the revenue which the schools and the welfare agencies now get from liquor and beer sales. I should remind you that although Hempstead and Nevada counties are technically "dry," the schools and welfare work of these counties get their share of state liquor taxes just the same.

Why haven't we set up a state dispensary system in Arkansas before now?

Well, who is for it?

The prohibitionists aren't.

Neither are the private package-store owners, or their wholesalers.

Only the great unorganized mass of citizens, with no extreme views one way or the other, and with no financial interest in the matter, are in favor of a state dispensary system.

More than one Arkansas governor has had the courage to suggest the dispensary plan, but has been browbeaten by the combined forces of the financially-interested and the strongly-opinioned.

We've tried everything else.

When will we follow the lead of 13 really progressive states and answer the liquor problem once and for all with a state-owned dispensary system?

Peanut Quotas to Be Voted Thursday

The outcome of next Thursday's peanut marketing quota referendum will determine the level of government price support for the 1951 crop, Mr. Earl Martindale, chairman of the Hempstead county Production and Marketing Administration points out.

The Agricultural Act of 1949 provides for mandatory price support to co-operating producers on their 1951 'quota' peanuts at a level between 80 and 80 per cent of parity, but only if marketing quotas are approved in the coming referendum," he explains.

"If growers vote against quotas next Thursday, price support will still be mandatory to co-operating producers, but at only 50 percent of parity.

To illustrate how this might work, Mr. Martindale takes the price support figures for the 1950 crop for comparison. He points out that the average support price for all types of 1950-crop peanuts — as marketing quotas are in effect — is 10.8 cents per pound, or $216 per ton. This is based on 90 percent of the parity price of $240 per ton on August 1, 1950. On this basis, 50 per cent of parity would amount to $120 per ton.

When quotas are in effect, a producer on whose farm the picked and threshed acreage is not greater than in 1947 may still be eligible for price support on his "quotas" peanuts even though the total picked and threshed acreage is greater than the farm acreage allotment, Mr. Martindale explains. Mayor Carroll Shifter and Police Chief Jack Runnels said they planned no disciplinary action against the five officers who made the arrests.

"The true facts will come out at Snyder's trial," Runnels said.

Snyder claimed the attack against him was unprovoked. Police said he struck one of the patrolmen in the eye before the night stick was used on him.

The charges against Snyder are interfering with arrest and fighting an officer. Jester is charged with drunkenness.

The operator of the night club, Margaret Newton, is charged with fighting an officer. And Bruce Tong, a taxicab driver was booked for interfering with an arrest.

Police said they were accompanied by a military policeman when they entered the night club to arrest Jester. One of the police officers, Leslie Carter, allegedly was slapped by the Newton woman.

Snyder and Tong entered the melee after Jester was taken to a waiting patrol car.

Both Jester and Snyder were in civilian clothes.

Civilian, Army Trouble Hits Texarkana

Texarkana, Dec. 12. — (UP) — Military and civil officials were involved in a squabble here today over the methods used by city police in arresting soldiers from the Red River arsenal.

Brig. Gen. Selby Franks, commanding officer at the army base, said he might place the city off limits to base personnel unless some sort of disciplinary action is taken against members of the police department.

Selby cancelled all passes into the city last night following a disturbance early Sunday at a night club during which 1st Lt. Lester Snyder was injured.

Snyder was struck with a night stick when he tried to interfere in the arrest of another soldier, Cpl. Fred Jester of Barksdale Field, La.

Two other persons joined in the melee and all four now face charges. All except Snyder, who was released on his own recognizance, posted bonds.

Mayor Carroll Shifter and Police Chief Jack Runnels said they planned no disciplinary action against the five officers who made the arrests.

Atlantic Pact Members Hold Two Sessions

London, Dec. 12. — (UP) — The North Atlantic pact's top military men met twice behind closed doors today, apparently to set up a command staff for a European defense force.

The military committee of the 12 Allies spent two hours in a morning session and then returned to work again after lunch.

The meetings are a prelude to a joint session tomorrow or Thursday with the pact council deputies on the problem of bringing German troops into the defense force.

The meetings were held in closely guarded Lancaster house. Problems under consideration included definition of size and scope of the command of North Atlantic treaty organization armies in Europe, and its link with existing regional defense groups like the five-nation Brussels alliance.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower is expected to be named commander-in-chief but there remains the choosing of his deputy and the commanders of ground, sea and air arms.

It is widely expected that the Brussels treaty defense group will be swallowed up by the new Atlantic pact force. Field Marshal Lord Montgomery now is commander-in-chief of the Brussels group, which includes Britain, France, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg.

Preston Reaves of Hermitage Dies on Duck Hunt

Warren, Dec. 2. — (UP) — Preston Reaves, about 55, brother of State Senator Lee Reaves of Hermitage, died early today on a duck hunting trip near De Witt.

A native of Bradley county he had been an executive of the Bradley lumber company for many years. He was in charge of fire prevention and protection for the company's vast timberlands.

In addition to his brother, he is survived by his wife, and two daughters, Julia, student at Henderson State Teachers college and Mary Ellen.

At a retail merchants meeting held yesterday morning in the Chamber of Commerce office it was agreed the regular store closing hours will be observed on Friday and Saturday of this week and Monday of next week.

UN Forces Withdraw Behind 38th Parallel; Ships Ready for Rescue

Tokyo, Dec. 12. — (UP) — Almost all North Korea was abandoned by United Nations troops today to the massive Communist forces of China and Red Korea's remnant army.

In the west, the bulk of the 11th army had withdrawn to parallel 38, the old boundary between North and South Korea.

In the northeast, most of the U. S. 10th corps was huddled on the Hamhung coastal plain. Their force was 130 air miles deep in Red Korea, but it was surrounded by Communist forces and the road south was blocked. At the nearby port of Hungnam, a U. N. fleet was standing by in readiness to evacuate the encircled 10th corps.

An American army regiment, the Seventh division's 17th, that once stood on the Manchurian border, was somewhere in the frozen wasteland and presumably withdrawing toward Hungnam. Its movements were shrouded for security reasons.

So, too, were the positions of two South Korean divisions, the Third and Capital. At full strength they would total about 20,000 men.

They had struck along the northeast coast within 40 miles of Soviet Siberia when masses of Red Chinese turned the tide and the order was given to withdraw.

The climactic point of collapse in the campaign sponsored by 53 non-Communist nations to smash Red Korea aggression and unify the divided country was accompanied by near-panic among Korean civilians.

Hordes of non-military Koreans — and probably some fifth columnists — were swarming southward across the frozen countryside. They crowded into every available vehicle or trudged through the snow and along roads and trails. Whole villages were on the move in queues of desperation — a opportunity in the case of disguised Reds.

Anxiety as apparent as panic reigned as refugees streamed southward from Korea's capital of Seoul. Some 100,000 refugees crossed the border within the last few days. The American people, for their part, were equally anxious. The declaration of a national emergency, which may come at any time, is likely to bring a nationwide exodus of Americans from Korea.

Parliament members cheered the announcement, made as a report on the prime minister's world crisis talks with President Truman in Washington and Canadian leaders in Ottawa. The prime minister returned by plane from his North American trip today, immediately reported to King George and held a conference with his cabinet.

Outlining to the house the results of the trip, Attlee said:

"On Korea and the Far East we have agreed on the immediate course which our representatives at the United Nations should follow.

"We were agreed that aggression must be halted and we were equally certain that every effort should be made to prevent an extension of the conflict.

"Our long range objective is to reach a stable position in the Far East."

Student Held in Accident Which Was Fatal to 5

London, Dec. 12. — (UP) — Prime Minister Attlee told the house of commons today, "I have good hope that the forces of the United Nations will maintain themselves in Korea."

McMath Acts to Correct Road Hazard

Memphis, Dec. 2. — (UP) — The Memphis Press-Scimitar said Arkansas Governor Sid McMath "acted" today in Little Rock "on the worst traffic hazard in the eastern part of the state."

He added that he thought price and wage controls should be imposed.

He expressed his views in a brief interview for a television newscast.

Senator Fulbright visited the White House and told newsmen afterward he had told President Truman he thought it was "deplorable" that some groups were fighting to remove Secretary of State Acheson and that some others were assailing General MacArthur's conduct of the Korean campaign.

He said the President was "glad to hear me express myself that way."

Predicts War Price Control Within a Month

Washington, Dec. 12. — (UPI) — George D. Gaskins, president of the finance committee, told the House he thinks the time is just around the corner when economic controls will be imposed.

George, who heads the finance committee, told the House he thinks the time is just around the corner when economic controls will be imposed.

Administration officials conceded that wage controls would be inevitable but that any national emergency declared soon by President Truman would be only the forerunner of a general price and wage controls new.

Large Crowd Attends Service at Tabernacle

Monday night at the Tabernacle Revival was observed as "Red Monday." It proved to be a very unique and impressive service. The attendance was the largest week night crowd since the beginning of special services.

Most everyone attending wore something red, as requested and pretty well every family brought a nice food item wrapped in red paper as a pounding for the pastor. The Evangelist, Rev. Paul W. Harrington spoke on "The Blood Train."

Revival services continue nightly at 7:30.

Mrs. Harrington will arrive today to join the evangelist in the revival. Everyone is invited to attend and enter into this revival of "Old time Religion."

LUCKY GUYS
FRANK R. ADAMS

COPY 1950 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

TRUE STORY: The exploits of Sgt. Eddie Engstrom's squad, wiped out in battle, are in their new book, "Lucky Guys." You can see Eddie in Marjorie Law, the girl Eddie fell in love with after he was dead. Eddie, however, had a secret sweethearts, and he was trying to make Marjorie one of his conquests and he is watching Max.

XX

SOME of the men seemed to admire Max Lengel, too. They were the discontented ones, those who would not have been satisfied with any kind of work or with any wages no matter how high. They groused among themselves most of the time and when Max came around they allowed their indignation to flare up into loud conversation.

"Mebbe we better talk this over," Max suggested to one group. "We'd ought to have a smoke anyway."

Eddie followed them into the men's lavatory which was territory sacred from the prying investigations of the company foremen.

Eddie was surprised to find Joe College already there.

"This," said Eddie, "is the last place I would expect to see you."

"To tell the truth, sergeant," Joe explained with the joyful patience which he always used on his less well-educated superior. "I only came to satisfy a quasi-intellectual curiosity. All this beautiful plumbing which we would have welcomed so gladly on those lush tropical atolls awakens in me nothing more than a dilettante's artistic appreciation."

"You mean a debutante?"

"I didn't but I could. They must be thrilled by an array of white enameled fixtures as mere men are. I might mention also that this is a wonderful place to get an earful of gossip. Tune in to what you know there wouldn't be any reason for overtime and Sundays. We won't make big dough just working regular. Any dumb-sock can see that. And you guys know what happens every time we take a risk to succeed. You know the sort of things that happen."

"Unfortunately, Eddie, I'm Eddie," Eddie said. "I'm just another friend in that lost statement to make the entire argument sound plausible."

"Do you think they're a bunch of robots or something?" Eddie asked maliciously, "watchin' for the like, and the like?"

"No," Joe replied. "They're merely slightly low-grade Americans taking a personal and short-range view of the situation, blind to the horns they can see."

"Another thing," continued Max. "I've heard that when we get awarded the Army-Navy E tomorrow the government is going to up our pay to the same little. Wouldn't we be anxious to work hard tonight when we can get more for tomorrow? The less we do the more coin we make."

XX

HIS audience laughed appreciatively. All but one. Eddie was troubled. "But we got to be patriotic."

"Sure we got to. I'm a good American, but I have to get paid as much as the next guy."

"The way I figure it," said the only man who stood up to Eddie, "is the man who stood up to Max, is the man that made the rules meant everything to be the right thing. They got bailed up somewhere before they got to us."

"Sure," agreed Max. "It's the way things work out that makes us sore. Take for instance, now, that fellow we're watchin' under-Herman Blundifish. He's an apple-polisher. I even saw one. Just to get in tight with the boss he don't care how hard he rides us guys that are doing the lifting around here. I strained my back so bad last night I could hardly sleep."

His friends thought he was joking and laughed appreciatively.

"Yeah, and another thing I got against Blundifish. The dirty so-and-so transferred my girl to the day shift so we don't go home together any more. Not that it makes any difference. I got me another girl friend today, a very tasty morsel if I do say so myself. Female has drive."

Learning to Play

Dear Miss Dix: Suppose you were about 30 years of age and had never learned to play. You hadn't many friends and no boy friends. Suppose you wanted to learn to play and to go places where you would meet men. What would you do? Where would you go? Suppose you wanted to learn to dance better and had very little money for it. What would you do? Suppose there was a boy you had met and you felt he was THE ONE and you hadn't made the proper impression on him. What would you do? Suppose you tell us in your column just what to do.

THREE BLIND MICE

Answer: I can't. If I knew any way by which a mousey girl could turn herself into a brilliant bird of paradise; if I knew any secret magic by which a quiet girl could suddenly become a gay and vivacious and spectacular; if I knew any way by which a girl without dates could attract all men to her, I should not be writing a newspaper column. I would be elected President of the United States by the unanimous feminine vote.

These things come by nature.

No one knows how or why.

Habits are Set

But to try to answer your questions. It is pretty late to try to learn to play when you are 30 years old. Your habits are settled. Your tastes are formed. But if you have permitted yourself to become too settled you can begin to step out a bit and entertain a little. That is the easiest way to get to know men without seeming to run after them. Men will always eat out of a woman's hand as long as she has food in it.

The best place to meet is in business. It takes wild horses to drag a man to tea, summer resorts and winter resorts are Adamless Edens; the happy hunting ground for husbands is to be found in offices.

If you want to learn to dance better and cannot afford a teacher, practicing your steps with some friend who is a good dancer. That's easy. But as to how to win a boy on whom you have failed to make an impression, that's a different story. Love comes and goes as it will and none of us know why or have the power to compel it. The only thing you can do is to throw yourself in the young man's way as often as you can without arousing his suspicions, and try to make yourself as interesting and agreeable to him as possible. Find out his taste in women and then try to be it.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I am 18, have run around considerably, thought myself in love many times, but found out I wasn't. Have had a job away from my family and friends for more than a year. Have always been in contact with older people in business and association and feel older than my age. Considering these things, would it be safe for me to marry a boy of 22, who is a fine fellow and able to support me. Does a girl of 18 know her own mind well enough to make a wise choice and know what she wants in a husband? What is the average outcome of youthful marriages?

MARGARET

Answer: According to divorce statistics, the average outcome of youthful marriages is failure. The proportion of divorces granted to men and women in their twenties

Unfortunately, Eddie, I'm Eddie," Eddie said. "I'm just another friend in that lost statement to make the entire argument sound plausible."

XX

What can I do with him?

A WIDOW

Answer: Nothing but turn him out of doors. Your son will never work as long as you and the other children support him, but he would work rather than starve.

Dear Miss Dix: Do you think it is possible for a girl to be in love with a man and yet question her chances of being happy with him? Would she wonder if she would be able to get along amicably with a man when she had to manage on insufficient funds? And would she be able to maintain diplomatic relations with her in-laws, who have already announced their intention of coming to live with her if she marries her son and to let her and John support them, although they are young and amply able to work themselves? I am a school teacher nearing 30 and am obsessed with these doubts, particularly as the young man is one of the kind who is totally lacking in thrift and far-sightedness. I would have to give

Dear Miss Dix: My oldest son is 28. He will not work and the younger children have to work and support him. When I try to get him to hunt a job he gets frantic and does not speak to me for weeks.

DEAR BLIND MICE

Answer: I can't. If I knew any way by which a mousey girl could turn herself into a brilliant bird of paradise; if I knew any secret magic by which a quiet girl could suddenly become a gay and vivacious and spectacular; if I knew any way by which a girl without dates could attract all men to her, I should not be writing a newspaper column. I would be elected President of the United States by the unanimous feminine vote.

These doubts, particularly as the young man is one of the kind who is totally lacking in thrift and far-sightedness. I would have to give

Frank Buchanan,
House of Representatives,
Washington, D. C.

Sir:

I am trying to force you to tell the public why you doggedly refrained from calling before your committee on lobbying I s i d e r Lipschutz, James H. Sheldon, or anyone else connected with the society for the prevention of World War III or the non-secretarian anti-Nazi league during your hearings last summer.Flabbergasted by the major league club owners decision, the baseball people attending the winter meetings were wondering what the next move would be. About the calmest persons here were the club owners themselves.

The most surprised man was Chandler. So stunned was the commissioner upon hearing the adverse news that he immediately resigned, then changed his mind and decided to finish out his current five-year term which expires May 1, 1952.The anti-Chandler group is willing to buy up his contract if he will resign. Chandler's pay was officially announced last December to be $65,000 a year. It was then that the owners voted to grant him a 15,000 raise.One anti-Chandler leader, who declined the use of his name, said owners were prepared to fire Chandler on the spot but cited a baseball rule that forbids the releasing of the commissioner before the expiration of his contract."We are prepared to pay him for the remaining 17 months tomorrow," the owner said. "If he were to resign, that would be the best thing for the commissioner to do.

It would save a lot of embarrassment and pave the way for the search for a new commissioner."Fred M. Saigh, president of the St. Louis Cardinals, one of the owners most opposed to Chandler, said he thought a new commissioner should be named as soon as possible."I would like to see a man with a judicial temper selected for the highest job in baseball," he said.
"Let a committee be appointed to name a successor. I think this should be decided by a meeting of the minds who would consider many men. Let the job seek the best man possible. For these are trying times."Despite the decision to oust the commissioner, there was some indication that the pro-Chandler group was prepared to make a renewed effort to save his job.The owner said there was a possibility another vote would be taken today when the National and American league meet to continue their business. All owners agreed that more discussions concerning the commissioner would undoubtedly take place. Chandler is slated to preside at a joint meeting of the two circuits tomorrow.There was switching of votes in the closed meeting last night. A trial ballot resulted in a 9-7 count in favor of Chandler. The next vote was 8-8. After Chandler asked the owners to re-consider, a new ballot restored the 9-7 edge. He needed 12 votes for re-election.So, yes, I say you were dishonest and I will give every scrap evidence that I possess—and it is an appalling record of secret persecution—to help the defense of the men you have indicated for refusing to put on the public record information which would be helpful to Lipschutz, Sheldon, the society and the league for their own purposes.You don't need to be told anything about Lipschutz. You have no excuse not to know that he came into court under a cloud of nasty charges and got by federal Judge Conger on a Friday to obtain arbitrarily and without explanation in his favor. Conger said it would serve no purpose for him to write a detailed opinion explaining how he arrived at that decision. I claim it was because he couldn't have justified it and ducked the issue with that off-hand comment on the uselessness of an opinion. I claim the whole mess should have gone to the grand jury for inquiry.You don't need to be told that shady characters employed by the league snooped and spied on American citizens when Lipschutz was not a citizen himself and was here by the sufferance and generosity of all American citizens.Why didn't you call some of the gum-shoe operatives who were used for spying by the league under the financial patronage of Lipschutz and the management of Sheldon?Why didn't you call Joe Brandt, an ex-convict with one of those Herbert Lehman pardons who was nailed again recently operating a racket in the guise of a cancer charity? Why didn't you call this crook who formerly worked for Lipschutz's league and ask him about the raid on the Henry Ford Automobile Hospital?Wednesday items:

you had succeeded, would have been put at their disposal information which they desire, but I can't deny that this could be mere coincidence. However, it is no mere coincidence that you turned your back on Lipschutz, Sheldon, the society and the league.You made the great mistake in getting those two guys indicted.
When they go to trial for contempt of congress you will find that you have opened the door for an exposé of the damnedest terror of moral

Prices Go Higher, Higher

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Dec. 11 — (AP) — This story on progress of price and wage controls which are being talked about but still seem some distance away.

In the period that we've been talking about some months now, consumer costs — the cost of the things you buy for everyday living — have hit an all-time high.

The North Korean invasion of South Korea on June 25 started the rolling.

On July 19 Mr. Truman asked Congress for limited powers to get a permanent program started, curbing time payments and heating materials. And he said he recommended higher taxes later. But he didn't ask, and in fact didn't want wage and price controls.

On Aug. 1 Mr. Truman said he thought he ought to have wage and price control power to be used if necessary. By Sept. 8 congress had passed an economic control bill, in addition to handing the President power to impose wage and price controls, if he wanted to use it. This new law gave the government various other powers, for example, rationing powers, penalties for violating controls on real estate and consumer buying, allocation of scarce industrial materials, priorities for defense orders, government loans and guarantees to set up production goals, and reconditioning of plants and equipment needed by the government.

Most of those powers the government already has started using. But not rationing or price and wage controls. On Sept. 8 Mr. Truman said in a broadcast the government would use price and wage controls when necessary.

He created the economic stabilization administration that same day, Sept. 9, and 10 days later appointed Dr. Alan Valentine, an economist to head it.

Valentine's E.S.A. was to have two main branches: A wage stabilization board and an agency for price control. On Oct. 10 Mr. Truman appointed Cyrus S. Ching as head of the wage board. But he delayed appointing a price boss.

On Nov. 29 the government's bureau of labor statistics announced that consumer prices had reached an all-time high in mid-October.

The Prescott Musical Colorie will have its annual Guest Tea on Wednesday in the home of Mrs. Charles Thomas.

Mid-week services to be held at that they had risen 3 per cent above June, when the Korean fighting started.

And — They were now 31 per cent higher than in June, 1946, which marked the beginning of the end of government wartime price controls.

Two days later, Dec. 1, Mr. Truman appointed the mayor of Toledo — Michael Di Salle price administrator.

On Dec. 4, Valentine said he had only limited faith in voluntary price controls. The next day the Ford and General Motor companies raised prices on their cars.

The same day Di Salle said he wanted to give voluntary controls a chance to work.

Ford and General Motors were asked not to raise their prices but they went ahead and raised them. On Dec. 8 Di Salle said he saw no reason for using price and wage controls now and hoped they wouldn't be necessary. Besides, he said, it would take another 60 to 90 days to get a staff together to administer them. He figured it would need 60,000 employees and 250,000 volunteers.

Mid-week services will be held at the First Christian Church Wednesday evening at 7:30.

There will be a Bible study and singing at the Church of Christ Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock.

Members of the Methodist church will enjoy a Christmas party on Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock in the Educational Building of the church. The guest speaker will be Dr. Connor Morehead, District Superintendent of the Camden District of the Methodist Church.

Friday, Dec. 15

The Annual Christmas Home Demonstration Council luncheon will be held at the Laneburg school Friday at 11:30 o'clock with the new Liberty and Laneburg clubs as hostesses.

Every club member is invited. The cost is one dollar per plate. Proceeds will go to the Laneburg PTA for the purchase of a bell system for the school.

British Break Riot Resulting From Trial

Singapore, Dec. 11 — (AP) — British troops with bayonets moved into the riot-torn streets of Singapore tonight to battle fanatical mobs, stirred to a frenzy by the court fight between a Dutch mother and a Malayan nurse for custody of a white child.

Hundreds of soldiers in trucks raced through the downtown sections where the mobs were battling police, attacking Europeans and overturning and burning automobiles.

About 5,000 Malaysans stormed for three hours at the supreme court building, where a hearing was underway on an appeal to return the 13-year-old child, Marla Bertha Hertog, to her Malay foster mother and her Moslem schoolteacher husband.

Then thousands of fanatic Moslems raced toward the Catt House convent, where the girl and her Dutch mother were reported to be.

They threatened to kidnap the child and burn the convent "if it took all night."

After eight hours, the mobs still were throwing stones and bottles, beating up Europeans, especially Dutchmen, and attacking vehicles.

Several European women were attacked with bottles and sticks, and a police officer said there were reports some white children had been kidnapped as hostages for Bertha.

Shots were fired and tear gas bombs hurled as police battled to break up the mobs. Thousands of Moslems flocked to the big sultan mosque where priests told them the court decision giving custody to Bertha to her Dutch mother affected.

Bertha was turned over to Mrs. Adeline Hertog nine days ago by the Supreme court after a prolonged hearing in which Malaysians, Indians and Chinese displayed great interest. The court also annulled the marriage of the child to a Mohammedan.

The mother claimed she gave the child to Che Arinah, Malayan nurse in Java, in 1942, for safekeeping. During the war the Hertogs were in a Japanese prison camp.

The mother lost trace of the child until two years ago. The Malay foster mother claimed the child had been given to her outright, and had raised her in the Moslem religion. Attorneys for Mrs. Hertog contended Maria's marriage was intended to circumvent the mother's efforts to get her back.

Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess.

Fulbright Defends Acheson as No Apeser

Washington, Dec. 11 — (AP) — Senator Fulbright (D-Ark) last night defended Secretary of State Dean Acheson and said he hastened to advocate anything, "that would involve us in an all out war with China."

Fulbright appeared on a television debate with Rep. Hugh D. Scott, Jr. (R-Pa) who called Acheson "the architect of appeasement and who urged an all-out Allied offensive in Korea if United States efforts fail to negotiate peace."

Acheson, Fulbright said, "I'm sure he's not an apeser. It's not Dan Acheson at fault but hisitory."

He said also that "I think the survival of the west depends on creating a unified army in Europe and preventing the domination of Russia in Western Europe."

Japan's industry derives about 60 per cent of its energy from coal, 28 per cent from water power and the remainder from petroleum and natural gas.

Florida has more than 7,000,000 acres of water.

fronted and violated the Mohammedan religion.

Authorities feared the religious outbreak, at a time when the entire Far East as a ferment would gravely endanger security and offer an opportunity for Communists to sabotage.

Some operators believe that since Lewis usually puts great emphasis on his contracts, he is more likely to ask for a voluntary concession than to kick over the traces. The mine owners themselves insisted on a one-year re-opening clause in the contract they signed last spring. They say Lewis would have agreed to a contract closed for two years.

Whenever Lewis decides to move, the fact he only has to deal with Moses and Moody — at least until

a bargain is virtually made

greatly streamlines the procedure.

Once he had to deal with several regional committees.

In 1945 and early 1946, the operators had one nation-wide committee. That didn't last, largely because the southern coal operators wanted to do their own negotiating.

Most of the balance of the industry then got together in an association with Moses at the head. He now speaks for about 150,000 tons of soft coal production, including all that of the "captive" mines of steel companies. That is one-third of the coal dug by Lewis' UMW.

Some operators and other management officials say they would not be surprised if Lewis waited

Lewis Can Easily Start Wage Move

Washington, Dec. 11 — (AP) — If he feels like it, John L. Lewis has only to pick up his telephone to start a movement for a fifth round wage increase for his coal miners.

He has given no indication of any plan to move before next spring, but he seldom tips his hand in advance.

The industry is now so organized that Lewis need only call Harry M. Moses, official spokesman for most of the commercial and steel companies' mines in northern and western fields, or Joseph E. Moody, head of the southern group. Both have offices about 100 yards from Lewis' United Mine Workers headquarters.

The contracts covering most of the nation's hard and soft coal diggers don't expire until April 1, 1951. However, there is no bar to voluntary wage increases if the operators agree to them before controls are slapped on prices and wages.

Most operators believe that since Lewis usually puts great emphasis on his contracts, he is more likely to ask for a voluntary concession than to kick over the traces. The mine owners themselves insisted on a one-year re-opening clause in the contract they signed last spring. They say Lewis would have agreed to a contract closed for two years.

Whenever Lewis decides to move, the fact he only has to deal with Moses and Moody — at least until

a bargain is virtually made

greatly streamlines the procedure.

Once he had to deal with several regional committees.

In 1945 and early 1946, the operators had one nation-wide committee. That didn't last, largely because the southern coal operators wanted to do their own negotiating.

Most of the balance of the industry then got together in an association with Moses at the head. He now speaks for about 150,000 tons of soft coal production, including all that of the "captive" mines of steel companies. That is one-third of the coal dug by Lewis' UMW.

Some operators and other management officials say they would not be surprised if Lewis waited
